with DCWT Botany Group

We are offering this national online course teaching the basics of plant taxonomy and field botany. The tutor will be the BSBI's Hon. Gen. Sec, Steve Gater.

The course is designed for adult beginners in field botany, amateur or professional, who wish to improve to the level of using floras and keys. You may already be able to name numerous plant species, but you generally identify plants by picture-matching or under expert supervision.

There are 15 units, delivered at fortnightly intervals from February to August. The first three cover theory (Classification, Terminology, Keys); the remainder cover the most important plant families in the order of their peak flowering times. There is a fee for this course of £100.

If you would like to find out more or discuss what is involved please contact Steve Gater directly:
